- bring native woodlands and designated woodland features into active management and good ecological condition
- support management of rural and urban woodlands for public access
- control grey squirrels where they are a threat to the red squirrel population
- control predators to benefit capercaillie and black grouse
- reduce deer impacts to a level that will allow regeneration of conifer and broadleaved species

How to claim

Grants available under this category are paid annually and you must claim them on your Single Application Form.

You may need to submit other documents to us to support your Single Application Form claim. These documents must be submitted annually between 1 December and 31 January to enable us to pay your claim.

Please check the individual option pages for more detail.

Amendments and variations

We recognise that from time to time you may need to amend your approved application due to unforeseen circumstances. If you would like to make changes, contact your local office to seek agreement to variations.

Please note that we cannot increase the value of the grants awarded in your contract by a variation due to the competitive nature of our grants approval process. You must still tell us if you intend to make any changes to the agreed work in your contract.

Inspections

We aim to carry out inspections of claims between July and November of each year within Forestry Commission Scotland's claims payment timeframes that will be developed within our customer charter.

During the inspection process we will liaise with our Rural Payments and Inspections Division colleagues to ensure that your work meets the cross compliance checks required for other agricultural and rural land-based grants.

We will let you know the results of our inspection as soon as it has been completed.

We will tell you if you have not met the minimum standards, the implications of this and what should happen next.

If your claim is authorised for payment, you can expect payment at the start of the following calendar year.
